Dear Friends and Colleagues:

Welcome to the 2016 National Family and Community Engagement Conference! The Institute for Educational Leadership is proud to host this 3rd national gathering highlighting the central role of strong family engagement in promoting the development of the whole child and preparing them for success from cradle to career.

Generally speaking, the FCE field includes a number of players with different roles, responsibilities, and entry points. These include district and school leaders, teachers, other educators and school-based support personnel, parent leaders and caring adults, community-based partners and nonprofit organizations, funders, public and private agency staff, university partners, and the list goes on. Viewed through a cradle-to-career lens, the key players are plenty and all are represented at this conference.

Our colleague Michele Brooks reminds us: “The opportunity to advance the field is best described as a window. The window is sometimes open and sometimes closed. When the window for opportunity is open, family engagement makes headway. However, when it closes, we seem to lose ground. The question is: How do we maintain ground so that when the window closes, we have a national infrastructure and support in place for districts to avoid losing ground?”

Our conference theme answers that question. We maintain ground by

OWNING OUR MOVEMENT, MAXIMIZING OUR IMPACT.

As is the case during each year’s conference, what we do here in Pittsburgh matters. Stay focused. Learn from your peers. Share stories and lessons learned. Discover new friends and allies. Ask for help, and share the love.

Currently, the window is open, and the time is now. Have a wonderful conference!

Sincerely,

S. Kwesi Rollins

COMMUNITIES ACROSS THE NATION ARE MOBILIZING

to ensure that children are healthy and ready for school, attend school every day and are engaged over the summer months. Working together with parents, schools and teachers, we can increase the number of children from low-income families reading proficiently by the end of third grade.

Dear Colleagues:

On behalf of the Department of Education, welcome to Pennsylvania and thank you for bringing your energy, enthusiasm, and ideas to the Keystone State.

At PDE we work every day to meet our mission of ensuring that all learners have access to a world-class education system that academically prepares them to succeed as productive citizens.

Over the past year and a half, we’ve worked hard to broaden our reach, seeking input from our stakeholders on some of the most important education issues in Pennsylvania. It is our stakeholders—lawmakers, advocates, professional organizations, educators, industry partners, and community leaders—who provide the valuable input that the department is using to develop policies that will impact every classroom over the next decade.

As educators, advocates, community partners, and parents representing all 50 states, you each bring unique experience and perspective to this conference. Over the next few days that you spend in Pittsburgh you will have an exciting opportunity to share stories and exchange ideas to further your mission in your communities.

I look forward to spending time and speaking with many of you, and hearing your ideas for how we can all work together to improve opportunities for children, youth, and their families.

Thank you for all you do for our students, and have a fantastic conference.

Sincerely,

Pedro A. Rivera
Secretary of Education

Greetings Conference Participants:

On behalf of the City of Pittsburgh, I am delighted to welcome friends and colleagues from around the country to the 2016 National Family and Community Engagement Conference!

We are honored to host this year’s event. It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to Pittsburgh. As a Mayor dedicated to keeping Pittsburgh as one of America’s most “livable cities,” I recognize how important it is to support our schools and improve cooperation among educational stakeholders so that our students can become college and career ready. Improving family and community engagement is central to achieving that goal.

Many of your attendees will have an opportunity to visit several of the schools and community-based organizations that serve as shining examples of good family engagement practices. Additionally, over 15 local programs will be featured in various workshops during the course of the conference.

I offer a special thanks to the conference sponsors at the Institute for Educational Leadership as well as members of the local planning committee, representing my office, the school district, our universities, local funders, community-based organizations, unions and other non-profits.

I’m confident that you will learn a lot about Pittsburgh in the next few days and leave with an even stronger commitment to ensuring that our children, youth and families are more successful. We’re proud to partner with you on this journey and encourage you to make the best of this incredible learning opportunity.

Have a wonderful time in Pittsburgh!

Sincerely,

William Peduto
Mayor, City of Pittsburgh

Greetings Conference Participants:

On behalf of Pittsburgh Public Schools, I am very pleased to welcome you to the 2016 National Family and Community Engagement Conference hosted by the Institute for Educational Leadership. We are thrilled that such an important event is taking place in Pittsburgh!

Here at Pittsburgh Public Schools, we are committed to ensuring that parents and families are welcomed, engaged and valued as stakeholders in the education of their children. We believe that families are an essential part of the educational process, and that a commitment from the entire community is necessary to build a culture that encourages student achievement. In 2013, we introduced the Whole Child, Whole Community plan, and a major component of that plan is the belief that the Pittsburgh community can come together in a cross-sector collaborative with the common agenda of post-secondary success for all of Pittsburgh’s children.

We want to make sure that Pittsburgh Public Schools and its partners have access to learning about best practices from around the country, so we offered scholarships for 2 representatives from each school in our District to attend this conference. We also offered scholarships to staff and community partners because we know that the information that will be shared here is relevant to the important work that they do.

I am happy to know that many of you will have the opportunity to visit some of our schools that are doing exemplary work with parent and community engagement. We have a rich tradition of partnering with families and communities to assist our students with achieving academic excellence, and we think that it is important to share many of these stories with our colleagues across the country.

I know that you will gain a great deal of knowledge over the next few days, and that you will leave with a deeper commitment to serving our children, families and communities.

Have a wonderful time in Pittsburgh!

Sincerely,

Linda S. Lane

National Association for Family, School, and Community Engagement
Significantly, family and community engagement has moved from “nice” to “necessary” over the last few years, and the field is still growing. Keeping the momentum going means we must continue “Owning Our Movement” in each and every school, community, district, and state. That’s how we create and sustain the conditions where our children can thrive.

Keynote: Michele P. Brooks, President, Transformative Solutions in Education

Michele P. Brooks

Michele P. Brooks is a parent activist, educational advocate, and educator. She served as the assistant superintendent for the Office of Engagement for the Boston Public Schools for eight years before her retirement in June 2015. Her work was influential in the development of the U.S. Department of Education’s Dual-Capacity Framework for Family-School Partnerships. In 2013, she was recognized as one of 16 Leaders to Learn From by Education Week magazine. Ms. Brooks is currently the principal consultant for Transformative Solutions in Education, a consulting firm which focuses on organizational development, program evaluation development, and leveraging engagement as a strategy for improving outcomes for schools and school districts. She was the founding director of the Boston Parent Organizing Network, serving from 1999 until 2004. She has also served as a member of the Boston School Committee from 2004 to 2008.
Senqué Little-Poole

Senqué Little-Poole (‘15) graduated with honors and distinction from Pittsburgh Science and Technology Academy. During his high school career, Senqué served as a lead organizer with A+ Schools’ TeenBloc. He helped to wage one of Pittsburgh’s most successful youth-led educational justice campaigns called We Deserve to Be Served. As a sophomore at Pomona College in California, Senqué continues to fight for student rights. He served as an organizer in Claremont College’s fight to strengthen and expand mental health services for students of color and is a founding member of a student-based arts collective.

Stanley W. Thompson

Stanley W. Thompson is director of The Heinz Endowments’ Education Program, which works with schools and community-based organizations to improve student achievement and promote high-quality learning, instruction and educational leadership in the Pittsburgh region. Before joining the Endowments in September 2008, he was the executive director of Times2 Academy for Engineering, Mathematics, Science and Technology, a charter school in Providence, R.I. that exposes children, particularly students of color, to challenging, real-world applications of engineering, mathematics and science. Thompson is a former MetLife/National Association of Secondary Schools State Principal of the Year for Rhode Island High Schools. Currently, he is the co-chairman of the Education Committee for the University of Pittsburgh’s Institute of Politics.

Bringing it All Together: Cities Leading Family Engagement

Room: 401/402

The National League of Cities (NLC) works with city leaders to help align early childhood systems (ECS). A central part of this work is engaging parents and families to be their children’s first teachers and strongest advocates. Hear from leaders in Fort Worth, Texas and Hartford, Conn. who lead and support family engagement efforts in their communities as part of a larger initiative to align and improve ECS. Learn about innovative programs to empower families and how NLC is helping local leaders transform how they view parents to be essential partners in planning and building ECS.

Speakers: Loretta Burns, Executive Director, AB Christian Learning Center, Fort Worth; Jose Colon-Rivas, Director, Department of Families, Children, Youth and Recreation, City of Hartford; Sandra Lamm, Early Childhood Coalition Coordinator, Fort Worth Independent School District; Katie Whitehouse, Senior Associate, Early Childhood, National League of Cities

Building the Schools our Children Deserve: Parents & Students Are Leading the Way

Room: 408/409

Across the country, partnerships are emerging between community groups and educators to build strategies that address the academic, social and emotional, and safety needs of all children, especially young people of color. Addressing the whole-child needs of learners who exist in families, communities, and a larger social and political context requires the engagement of key stakeholders—parents and students—more than ever. Hear from national, state, and city-led coalitions about what they are doing to promote better resourced, better connected school communities to support young people.

Speakers: Keron Blair, Director, Alliance to Reclaim Our Schools; Natasha Capers, Parent Organizer, Coalition for Educational Justice; Cassie Schwerner, Senior Vice President, Schott Foundation for Public Education

Campaign for Grade-Level Reading: Do Parents Matter?

Room: 303/304

A deeper conversation on why promoting parent success is the most promising lever for improving outcomes for young children is long overdue. Despite the near universal embrace of “parent engagement” as an important objective, too many policymakers, researchers, program developers, and practitioners seem ambivalent about whether, when, and how much parents matter. Parents do matter. Learn more about why we all should have a sense of urgency.

Speakers: Portia Kennel, Senior Advisor,
Early Learning & Literacy: Let’s All Become Brain Builders!

Room: 315/316

New understanding of brain development tells us that our children’s first five years are when they develop the foundation for all future learning. Engaging families in learning with their young children promotes school readiness and helps ensure that they are reading at grade-level by the end of 3rd grade, a key precursor to future success. Learn more about how creative capacity-building strategies based on Mind in the Making, public awareness campaigns like Vroom, and more than 30 initiatives around the country using school-to-home innovations, such as video messages and online early literacy resources, are helping parents and educators become Brain Builders.

Speakers: Lisa Guernsey, Director of Learning Technologies Project, New America; Michael Levine, Executive Director, Joan Ganz Cooney Center at Sesame Workshop; Erin Ramsey, Senior Manager for Mind in the Making, Bezos Family Foundation

ESSA: Opportunities for Revitalizing Family Engagement Under the New Law

Room: 413/414

New language in the Every Student Succeeds Act gives us leverage to revitalize school-parent compacts. Old compacts stay the same year after year, gathering dust. Impact = 0. New compacts can become a powerful tool for engaging families as partners in improving student learning. Find out what innovative states like Connecticut and California are doing and how to engage parents in designing compacts that are linked to school improvement goals. Learn about the need for further capacity building of educators to strengthen their partnerships with families.

Speakers: Judy Carson, Program Manager for School-Family-Community Partnerships, Connecticut Department of Education; Oscar Cruz, President and CEO, Families In Schools; Brenda Girton-Mitchell, Director, Center for Leaders to Learn From: District-Wide Strategies for Building Capacity & Strengthening Family-School Partnerships

Room: 403/404

Building the capacity of educators, parents, and community partners is the key to sustaining district-wide family engagement strategies that support children’s learning from cradle to career. Learn more about bright spots and challenges in implementing systemic strategies from members of the District Leaders Network on Family and Community Engagement.

Speakers: Michele P. Putting Youth & Families in the Driver’s Seat: Navigating a Path from School to Career

Room: 301/302

Family members and other caring adults play a vital, yet often unrecognized role in supporting students with disabilities explore careers, build social skills, and be successful in employment. This session will focus on successful strategies that families of youth with disabilities can use to help their young person prepare for and keep a job. The session will also offer ideas on how educators and other transition professionals can frame employment preparation for youth with disabilities as a collective effort that requires energy and support from families.

Speakers: Rhonda Basha, Supervisory Policy Advisor, Youth Policy, Office of Disability Employment Policy; Ali Hrasok, Leadership Development Coordinator, Lehigh Valley
The Case for a Learning Supports Approach: Even Though We’re Working So Hard, Why Doesn’t Every Student Learn?

Room: 317/318

Every district wants to help students reach their full potential and become successful members of a community and workforce. Despite the hard work of school staff and families, districts are increasingly concerned about the lack of growth in student performance. Clearly, not all students come to school every day motivationally ready and able to learn. Many students experience barriers that interfere with their ability to be physically, emotionally, or mentally present. This session introduces participants to Adelman’s and Taylor’s Learning Supports Framework—a roadmap for schools to partner with families and communities to implement a comprehensive system of supports that helps ensure all students have the opportunity to benefit from quality instruction.

Speakers: Ron Mirr, Senior Vice President of Learning Supports and Family Engagement, Scholastic Education; Rhonda Waltman, Senior Director of Consultancy Services for Learning Supports, Scholastic Education.

Networking Reception
5:00 p.m. – 6:00 p.m.
North Terrace Roof, Fourth Floor

Mingle with your colleagues and make new connections over hors d’oeuvres and beverages!

This networking reception features the KRUNK Movement, a youth micro-entreprise production company. Students use the elements of hip hop to communicate messages to peers about mental and physical health while learning the basics of the music business, from creating to performing to engineering and all of the in-between.

In a city of 88 neighborhoods with more bridges than any other city in the world, Pittsburgh’s rivers suggest constant flow, while its bridges convey connections. Increasingly, Pittsburgh is becoming known for its parent-led, community-based school improvement efforts. The Pittsburgh Story is an in-depth look at how a variety of partners and local leaders are improving engagement between educators, parents, and families at different levels of a child’s education.

Introduction: Gretchen Givens Generett, Associate Professor, Duquesne University
Department of Educational Foundations and Leadership

Opening: Medina Jackson, Community Outreach Coordinator, Ready Freddy:
Pathways to Kindergarten Success

Panel Discussion: Giordan Dixon, Student Leader, TeenBloc, A+ Schools; Errika Fearbry Jones, Executive Director of Internal/External Affairs, Pittsburgh Public Schools; Maria Searcy, Parent Involvement in Education Consultant, Pennsylvania Department of Education

Giordan Dixon
Giordan Dixon (’16) is a graduating senior at Westinghouse Academy. This year, he worked with TeenBloc’s Project SpeakUp to curate a series of student-led interviews for Pittsburgh’s superintendent search. Dixon felt “it was important that PPS students’ voices were included in the conversation, as the outcome would directly affect them.” He is a contributor to TeenBloc’s education justice podcast “The Bloc.” Dixon worked at Woolslair Elementary with the Reading Warriors program, which pairs high school students with elementary mentees. As a musician, he has been involved in the YMCA Lighthouse Project. Dixon served as a longtime member of Assemble, a community arts and technology space. He plans to attend Community College of Allegheny County this fall and transfer to Duquesne University to study music production.

Gretchen Givens Generett
Gretchen Givens Generett, Ph.D. is an associate professor in the Department of Educational Foundations and Leadership in the School of Education at Duquesne University. She is the director of the University Council for Educational Administration Center for Educational Leadership and Social Justice. Most recently, she was the Community Partnership Fellow In-Residence in the Center of Urban Education at the University of Pittsburgh and has served as the Associate Dean for Graduate Studies and Research in the School of Education at Duquesne. Generett’s professional journey includes writing and editing books and journals in the field of education. Her scholarly publications, teaching, and work in the community demonstrate her passion for breaking down barriers to successfully teach students of color.

Medina Jackson

Medina (professionally known as Medina Jackson, MSW) is a poet, performing artist, blogger, proud mother, and community educator. She is the outreach coordinator for Ready Freddy: Pathways to Kindergarten Success, a University of Pittsburgh’s Office of Child Development project working with Pittsburgh Public Schools. From South Berkeley, Calif., she moved to Pittsburgh in 2001 to earn her MSW with a focus on Community Organization and Social Administration. Jackson is an advocate of innovative, culturally relevant, socially practical pedagogical models that empower youth and families of color in urban schools and other settings. She is the recent recipient of an Advancing Black Arts in Pittsburgh grant from The Heinz Endowments and The Pittsburgh Foundation to produce her spoken word/hip hop hybrid music project.

Errika Fearbry Jones

Errika Fearbry Jones is a nationally recognized leader, trainer, and public speaker known for designing and implementing large-scale collaborative projects that create positive outcomes for youth, families, and communities. At Pittsburgh Public Schools (PPS), she supports the superintendent on priority initiatives and is the liaison between the offices of the superintendent and board of directors. Jones leads the district’s Family, Youth and Community Engagement efforts, its Environments that Support Teaching and Learning initiatives, and the Collective Impact Pilot. She serves as the co-lead for the Educational Partnership with the Wilkinsburg School District. Prior to PPS, Jones was the youth policy director for the City of Pittsburgh and vice chair for the Pennsylvania Commission on Crime and Delinquency. She is a certified mediator, master facilitator, and youth violence reduction expert.

Maria Searcy

Maria Searcy is a Parent Involvement in Education consultant for the Pennsylvania Department of Education. She provides technical trainings to school districts to increase parent involvement in schools. She served on the PA Title I State Parent Advisory Council for eight years, and for the last seven, she was on the Pittsburgh Public Schools Equity Advisory Panel, addressing the persistent achievement gap between African American and white students. A Pittsburgh native, Maria leads the Northside Parent Action Council, a new grassroots community action group that is part of Pittsburgh Parent Power, funded by The Heinz Endowments and supported by the Annenberg Institute for School Reform. In 2012, she received the Community Empowerment Award at the Summit for Courageous Conversations, Pacific Educational Group.
Challenging Assumptions about Families: A Race & Equity Training for Teachers & Administrators
Room: 306/307
This race and equity-based session will challenge teachers and administrators to rethink their assumptions about family engagement and why traditional approaches are often unsuccessful. This interactive workshop will support conference attendees in the Dual Capacity-Building Framework by building capacity in the “4 C” areas of policy and program goals. This is an introductory session for participants to explore how race and class impact family engagement as a critical step in developing effective and creative strategies for meaningful home-school partnerships.

Presenters: Allyson Criner Brown & Iris Jacob, Teaching for Change

Community Cultural Wealth
Room: 409
Too often, communities of color are portrayed through a deficit lens as “culturally inferior” and in desperate need of “saving.” The Advancement Project California leverages the abundant assets of Southeast Los Angeles’ communities and has devised a program to engage families to advocate for increased access to high-quality early learning. Attendees will identify their own community’s cultural wealth and leverage this experience to shift how they see and engage with families of color.

Presenters: Jessenia Reyes, Ernesto Saldaña & Edith Cabezas, Advancement Project

Cradle To College & Career: The SCUSD Parent Leadership Pathway Program
(Bilingüe Español-Inglés)
Room: 410
It is never too early for parents to become engaged in a successful education path for their children! Skill and knowledge development workshops are key to increasing family and community empowerment. The Family and Community Empowerment team will share the development and implementation of the SCUSD Parent Leadership Pathway series and how to create workshops that are specifically designed to meet the needs of your community. A panel discussion will give insight into positive impacts from building parent capacity.

Presenters: Tu Moua-Carroz, Sean Alexander, Alma Avalos, Nora Castro & Oswaldo Hernandez, Sacramento City Unified School District

Engaging Families & Youth as Lead Community Partners Across New England
Room: 404
This session will feature the organizing, engagement, and school partnnership strategies from two different New England communities. From developing parent and youth leaders in rural Pittsfield, N.H. to organizing refugee and immigrant families in Portland, Maine, workshop presenters will address how community organizing is a powerful way to generate family engagement and school partnership strategies with parent and youth leaders to support and improve schools. Specific engagement strategies will be demonstrated and discussed.

Presenters: Mo Baxley, Jennifer Cheney & Jen Cole, Pittsfield Listens; Christopher Marcotte, Pittsfield Youth Voice; Pious Ali, Emily Thielmann, Nyawal Lia & Nolasque Isirabahenda, Portland Empowered; Keith Catone, Annenberg Institute for School Reform.

Expanding Family Engagement During Transition to College & Career for Youth with Disabilities

Room: 303

There is more to family engagement than attending an IEP meeting. Families can be valuable allies as youth with disabilities prepare for their transition into college and career readiness. Access a set of strategic planning tools for schools, districts, and community agencies committed to expanding their current practices through this session. Presenters will lead interactive activities for sharing promising practices and will summarize preliminary field test results from three states.

Presenters: Amy Pleet-Odle, Inclusion Focused Coaching; Sean Roy, PACER's National Parent Center on Transition and Employment

Family Engagement in Secondary Schools: Supporting Families to Play Age-Appropriate Roles

Room: 403

Flamboyan Foundation defines family engagement as the collaboration between families and educators that accelerates student learning. In this session, participants will learn research-based practices for engaging middle and high school families that honor adolescents’ growing independence and support families to play impactful roles. Participants will discuss the importance of asset-based family engagement that encourages practitioners to examine not only the

Participants will explore the Dual Capacity Framework for Family-School Partnerships and learn to use interactive strategies to embed best practices into family engagement events. This highly interactive session will focus on building a Family Reading Night that is linked to learning and is relational, developmental, collaborative, and interactive. Participants will leave the session with high-impact strategies designed to shift the
The Power of Advocacy: Partners in Advocacy

Room: 304

Never doubt that a small group of concerned parents and community members can create change in a school district. We have proof that in Pittsburgh that they did. There is much to learn from the strategic advocacy of the Equity Advisory Panel, the legal support garnered through the Pennsylvania Human Rights Commission, and the Memorandum of Understanding written in partnership with Pittsburgh Public Schools. Collaboratively, these stakeholders offer a powerful road map for advocating for equity.

Presenters: Wanda Henderson, Original Advocate for African-American Students Complainant; Viola Burgess & Jason Rivers, Pittsburgh Public Schools

PTA: Your Partner in Empowering Families to Improve Schools & Policies

Room: 316

Learn how the PTA National Standards for Family-School Partnerships can help you engage families in supporting student success and advocating for school or policy improvements. Hear about recent case studies of successful family-school partnerships. Access tools to assess your current family engagement practices. Learn what’s on the horizon for National PTA’s policy efforts, including how PTA will strengthen resources available to advocates for family engagement in the implementation of the new Every Student Succeeds Act.

Presenters: Mary Pat King, Renee Jackson & Jacki Ball, National PTA

Ready to Enter: Families Owning Kindergarten Readiness

Room: 305

The Boston Public Schools provides Play to Learn Playgroups to bring together parents, children, and an early childhood professional to build a community of peers to support, foster nurturing behaviors, help families access needed services, and model developmentally appropriate practice. Identify resources and structures in your district and receive templates for launching your own playgroup as a school-based community resource in which parents are welcome, learn to ensure their child is kindergarten-ready, and to which they can turn for needed supports. As a bonus, see how this early childhood initiative is helping close the achievement gap for students in Boston.

Standing Together to Ensure Welcoming Learning Environments

Room: 317

To what extent should we, as educational leaders and stakeholders, facilitate the creation of positive, safe, and healthy learning environments for our nation’s students? The White House Initiative on American Indian and Alaska Native Education will explore this topic during an interactive listening session addressing how imagery and symbolism in educational institutions, such as school mascots, can either enhance or diminish the academic climate for students. Conversations will examine how the advocacy of students, parents, educators, and community leaders, as well as action taken by athletic associations, private companies, and government, can mitigate the use of offensive symbols and create a more welcoming climate.

Presenter: William Mendoza, White House Initiative on American Indian and Alaska Native Education

State Approaches for Supporting Family Engagement in Early Childhood Education

Room: 411

How do states support family engagement in early childhood education? Increasingly, states are implementing innovative approaches for integrating family engagement into their early learning systems. This panel presentation will highlight examples of statewide initiatives that lay the foundation for school readiness and student success through systemic family engagement approaches. Learn how Kansas, Pennsylvania, and Illinois are working to support family engagement in early childhood education.

Presenters: Lacy Wood, American Institutes for Research; Barbara Gannaway, Kansas Parent Information Resource Center; Sarah Holland, Pennsylvania Department of Education; Reyna Hernandez, Illinois State Board of Education

Teacher Capacity Building for Meaningful Family Partnerships: Let’s Share Knowledge

Room: 402

Join family engagement professionals with expertise in implementing, evaluating, and organizing staff capacity-building efforts in this hands-on workshop that will improve communication about what we understand and can do to support teachers’ partnerships with families. We will share examples of programs using the Dual Capacity-Building Framework for staff development and participants will have the opportunity to share successes and challenges in their work. Explore avenues used to build knowledge locally and nationwide.

Presenters: Joanna Geller, Annenberg Institute for School Reform; Eden Segal, Westat; Jessica B. Lavorgna, Education Development Center

Teaching Attendance: Engaging Families to Reduce Chronic Absence

Room: 310/311

As teachers know, too many absences can disrupt learning, not just for absent students but for the entire classroom. Too often, parents and students do not realize how quickly absences—excused or unexcused—can add up to academic trouble. Join Attendance Works to learn how teachers can engage families in reducing chronic absence. In an interactive format, come learn strategies that teachers can use throughout the school year to build and reinforce a culture of attendance. Participants will have access to the free 2016 Teaching Attendance toolkit.

Presenters: Cecelia Leong & Sue Fothergill, Attendance Works

Using Social Media to Tell Your School Story & Connect with Diverse Families

Room: 408

Across the country, schools are looking for ways to build positive home-school connections, a critical factor for student success. Join us for a practical and interactive workshop sharing experiences of teachers and low-income immigrant families in two Arlington, Va. public elementary schools. Social media is a key strategy to show what’s happening in the school and classroom to those who cannot experience them on a daily basis and to promote two-way communication and home-school relations.

Presenters: Rosa Briceno, Arlington Public Schools; Josh McLaughlin, Valerie Koch & Roxanda Ordoñez, K.W. Barrett Elementary; Erin Sonn, Caty Branco & Karina Lagos, Abingdon Elementary

What Happens in Vegas... A Diversified Approach to Family Engagement

Room: 318

What happens in Vegas... is in Pittsburgh! In Las Vegas, the Clark County School District’s Family and Community Engagement Services will present their diversified approach to family engagement in the nation’s fifth largest school district. Presenters will share the collective vision and systemic alignment guiding their work and unique effective strategies for addressing the needs of diverse communities. Participants will explore the creative funding mechanisms used to implement these strategies in their own districts.

Presenters: Cheryl Adler Davis, Patsi Saas, Eve Melendrez, Debbie Palacios & Nancy Alamo, Clark County School District

Academic Parent-Teacher Teams: An Innovative Approach to Engaging Families

Room: 310/311

Academic Parent-Teacher Teams (APTT) is an innovative approach to conducting parent teacher conferences. During this session, participants will be guided through the essential elements in the APTT model, including teachers sharing data on literacy and mathematics, parents learning a foundational skill and strategy to do at home, and parents setting goals for their children. Come learn how teachers facilitate these parent meetings three times a year with the entire class, plus a 30-minute individual meeting with families. Presenters will share lessons learned implementing APTT over three years, across 16 schools, in 139 diverse classrooms.

Presenters: Karin Halpin & Pamela Christianson, Anchorage School District

Creating Intentional Connections to Impact Practice

Room: 318

This interactive workshop provides a unique experience for participants to learn about high-impact family engagement models being implemented around the country. NAFSCE’s Communities of Practice build on the theme of “connections” from the 4Cs in the Dual-Capacity Building Framework. These strategies are collaborative, culturally competent, and focused on improving children’s learning. Friday CAFE, ParentCamps, and the Communities of Practice provide models for connecting people in the spirit of learning and measuring and sustaining impact.

Depts. of Education & HHS Joint Policy Statement on Family Engagement

Room: 317

The U.S. Depts. of Education and Health and Human Services recently released their joint policy statement for implementing family engagement practices in early childhood, pre-school, and K-3 settings. This policy statement provides guiding principles and recommendations for state and local education agencies and administrators of early childhood and pre-school programs. Participants will have an opportunity to network and learn about effective strategies for implementation of family engagement practices at state, local, and program levels. Session leaders will field questions and provide time to hear audience challenges and best practices related to implementation.

Presenters: Vicki Myers & Carmen Sanchez, U.S. Department of Education; Kiersten Beigel, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services
Elev8 Baltimore: A Full-Service Community School Approach to Family & Community Engagement

Room: 405

Grow your understanding of the full-service community school approach to family and community engagement, including toolkits and take-home ideas for incorporating promising practices into your initiatives. Elev8 Baltimore partners with schools, families, and the community to impact student achievement through meaningful engagement by connecting our three core pillars to the concepts that families and communities care about: extended learning (after-school/summer), health and wellness, and family engagement (learning at home and financial stability).

Presenters: Alexandria Warrick Adams & Kellie Brown, Elev8 Baltimore; Federico Adams, Baltimore City Public Schools

Engaging the Teachers: Building Staff Capacity for Family Engagement in Nashville

Room: 403

During this session, participants will explore how to develop a teacher-training program that addresses welcoming schools, parent engagement, equity and access, and community involvement as a means to successful family-school-community partnerships. Using Nashville’s Family Engagement University program as an example of dual-capacity framework implementation, participants will explore their own district or site’s needs, resources, and assets for the creation of a program authentic and sustainable to their own context.

Presenters: Allison Buzard, Metro Nashville Public Schools

From Qualitative to Quantitative: Using Parent Stories to Measure Family Engagement

Room: 316

Head Start has always focused on parents as their children’s first teachers, but recent projects of the National Head Start Association have worked to raise awareness of excellent self-sufficiency programming for families through Two Generations Together to develop parents’ skills as their children’s First Advocates, to help programs quantify family engagement, and to ensure that new Head Start standards don’t limit the role of parents in local programs. This session will explore all of those projects and findings and resources that translate across settings.

Creativity in the Community, a wildly successful, immersive art and literacy experience program at the Bass Museum of Art in Miami Beach, Fla., encourages togetherness and strengthens family bonds through art, storytelling, and literacy. Elementary school educators, artists, administrators, and organizations seeking to create meaningful connection with other cultural institutions are encouraged to attend. Participants in this noteworthy session will receive expert commentary that goes beyond lecture and provides hands-on practicum and real-world experiences through sample lesson plans and partnership development tools to enhance community programs.

Presenters: Kylee Crook & Mariana Corbalan, Bass Museum of Art

YouthACTing 4 Change with Family & Adult Partners

Room: 302

Attend this session to hear how Pennsylvania’s YouthACT team used their advocacy skills to shape healthcare and transition. In partnership with their families and adult partners, team members advocate in high school, home, college, rehabilitation services, and in physicians’ offices to successfully manage their chronic conditions and develop a plan that works for them. Pennsylvania’s YouthACT team members will inspire their peers to use their voice to shape the human service and healthcare system for personal and policy success.

Presenters: Erin Seiler, Seamus Hanrahan & Elizabeth Beil, YouthACT Seize Control Team; Jennifer Thomas, Institute for Educational Leadership

Board Watch: A Good Governance Program of A+ Schools
Room: 316

Board Watch engages citizens in a process to observe and provide feedback to elected officials on the local school board. Through Board Watch, volunteers are trained on how to recognize good governance. Within this workshop, participants will become familiar with the practices and behaviors that lead to good governance. Participants will also review the instrument used by volunteers through Board Watch and learn how this tool can be used in their own school districts.

Presenters: Carey Harris & Graham Mulqueen, A+ Schools

Breaking Boundaries: A Connected Community
Room: 317

Join us to learn strategic approaches to align culturally relevant community resources that address the social, emotional, and physical needs of a child by increasing accessibility to wraparound services for the entire family. This is an opportunity for dialogue and making connections between various approaches to connect families to resources and learn about the benefits of working within a community feeder pattern.

Presenters: Reina Beatrice Tello, Arturo Magana & Alexi Coppinger, Los Angeles Education Partnership

District Leadership Supports School Success
Room: 411

Creating strong and sustainable family and community engagement programs in schools requires district leadership. Attendees will learn about effective strategies for district-level leadership and facilitating engagement programs in schools. These strategies include aligning programs and policy, guiding learning and program development, celebrating milestones, and evaluating outcomes. Using a two-pronged approach, building leadership at the district level and direct facilitation of school teams, attendees will be guided to organize their own work at their home site.

Presenters: Steven Sheldon & Marsha Greenfeld, National Network of Partnership Schools

Effective Community Engagement in a Changing School Environment
Room: 408

As the population of the District of Columbia grows and changes, similar changes are reflected in other school communities across the country. These dynamics include racial, ethnic and socio-economic shifts that are often difficult to navigate, and require tough, but honest communication and relationship building.
Through two case studies, school and central office leaders will hear ideas and viewpoints on how to create a healthy school environment that is respectful of changing landscapes in school districts in urban cities.

Presenter: Elias Hoffman & Josephine Bias Robinson, D.C. Public Schools

Engaging a Community in Early Childhood Education, Collaboration & Sustainability

Room: 410

In the field of early childhood education, there are so many resources available for educators that sometimes the number of options can be daunting. Participants will examine how a model of collaboration in the city of Pittsburgh, where early childhood experts, organizations and resources have come together to work as a team, supports the development of early childhood educators and enhances the lives’ of the youngest members of the city’s population.

Presenters: Susan Polojac, Brandice Wilburn, Katie Gullone & Cynthia Battle, Pittsburgh Association for the Education of Young Children

Engaging Families in Individual Plans of Study

Room: 303

Join KPIRC to explore how Individual Plans of Study (IPS) in middle and high school can help students strategize their learning while giving information to families as they plan their child’s future. By including families in the IPS process, families engage in the career development of their child, which serves as a key driver for optimizing youth development. Small groups will examine mock IPSs and share ways families can participate in their child’s college and career readiness.

Presenters: Jane Groff & Barbara Gannaway, Kansas Parent Information Resource Center

FAST®: Empowering Parents, Engaging Families & Establishing Community Relations

Room: 402

Learn about a community-based parent engagement and empowerment approach that applies evidence-based practices to build social capital and strengthen... families, ultimately creating a supportive web for students to thrive at home and school. This session will cover important insights from two urban and rural case studies and data from randomized control trials. Attendees will be provided the space to problem-solve and identify research-backed strategies to empower and engage families in their own communities.

Presenter: Angel Barajas, Families and Schools Together

Getting Young Children & Families Ready to Learn with Media Resources (Bilingüe Español-Inglés)

Room: 405

Join us to learn how to use public television resources to facilitate family engagement and connection between school and home through tools that include games, activities, and mobile apps. Together we will interactively explore a wealth of free digital media resources for families and educators in support of early math and literacy learning. Attendees will have the opportunity to download free PBS KIDS apps. BYOMD... Bring Your Own Mobile Device!

Presenter: Susie Grimm, PBS SoCal; Gina Maschiola & Cathy Cook, Pittsburgh PBS

How Developing Parent Leaders Can Lead to Transformational Change

Room: 318

Across the country, initiatives to cultivate parent leadership have enabled parents to develop civic skills and voices as leaders and advocates for children across class, race, and culture. We are learning that these well-prepared parent leaders can be a powerful force for equity and greater opportunity for children. Learn about new research on these programs and hear from program leaders and parents about their impact on children and communities.

Increasing Parent Capacity Around Disability Through Federally Funded Resource Centers

Room: 304

How do you create programs for diverse families of children and youth with disabilities focused on increasing involvement in their children’s education? How can you help them access and create inclusive opportunities for their children and build their capacity as parent leaders and advocates? Through active audience engagement, participants will gain information and resources from the federally funded parent training and information center and community parent resource centers in Pennsylvania.

Presenters: Carmen Sanchez, U.S. Department of Education, Office of Special Education Programs; Jill Hrinda-Patten, Mission Empower; Liz Healey, PEAL Center
Leadership Matters: The Role of School Principals in Effective Family-School Partnerships

Room: 403

How do effective school leaders foster a culture of strong school, family, and community partnerships? What does research tell us about best practices for school principals when it comes to meaningful engagement of families? An elementary, middle, and high school principal will share their experiences with family and community engagement, leadership development, program evaluation, and more. Leadership matters; come join the conversation and learn strategies for leveraging principal and teacher buy-in.

Presenters: Molly Sehring & Adrienne Koger, Metro Nashville Public Schools; Timothy Drinkwine, Eakin Elementary School; Sonya Brooks, Gra Mar Middle School

Organizing to Win through Parent, Teacher & Community Collaboration

Room: 310/311

This workshop focuses on the power of parent-teacher-community collaborative organizing. Great Public Schools Pittsburgh (GPS) will describe our work together over the last four years as an example of what’s possible and explore with you what conditions support this work and how to overcome challenges. Participants will learn how GPS was able to stop school closings; mobilize parents, teachers, and community members to participate in the school boards’ public engagement process for its superintendent search; and develop a city-wide campaign for sustainable community schools.

Presenters: Evans D. Moore, Great Public Schools Pittsburgh; Doreen Allen, Lizz Fulton, Debra Srogi & Shawn Dalton, Pittsburgh Public Schools; Sandra Woolley, Education Task Force of Pennsylvania Interfaith Impact Network

Parent Engagement Power: Teacher-Organized, School-Based Parental Engagement

Room: 409

Linton’s Got “PEP”, Parent Engagement Power, is a concerted middle school effort led by three teachers and the social worker at Linton Middle School in the Penn Hills District outside of Pittsburgh. PEP is designed to bridge the gap between school and home. At its core, it is an attempt to increase student achievement by engaging more parents in the schooling process. Join this session to hear about the development of the program, implementation of the ideas, and lessons learned about doing the work of parental engagement.

Presenters: Kyoko Henson, Aimee Boyd & Gloria Peterman, Linton Middle School; Gretchen Givens Generett, University of Pittsburgh

Parent Liaisons: Taking Family Engagement to the Next Level
Room: 301

Looking for a parent engagement approach that's comprehensive, research-based, and effective for a diverse range of families? The non-profit Thrive refined its Parent Liaison Program over 20 years, expanding to 18 Montana and Wyoming schools. It has fundamentally changed the relationship between parents and schools. Participants will take away specific ideas for creating meaningful, lasting family engagement initiatives and leveraging strengths of schools, communities, and families to increase student success.

Presenter: Steve Wellington, Thrive

Parent-Child Reading Clubs: Teacher, Community & Parent Facilitators
Room: 305

One exciting way to engage families in children’s learning is to bring adults and children together to read and discuss books relevant to the community. In this workshop, Boston Public Schools will share its successful model for Family Reading Clubs, which foster the love of reading among elementary school students and their parents. School and community facilitators have been trained to lead clubs in English, Spanish, Chinese, and Vietnamese, expanding our capacity to reach a wide range of families. Come learn why this program is loved by families and schools!

Presenter: Alice Levine, Boston Public Schools, Office of Engagement

Strategic Family Engagement: Key Parent Roles that Boost Student Achievement
Room: 404

How can we create sustainable, meaningful parent engagement that promotes achievement? Learn from successful districts using Parenting Partners, a comprehensive, dynamic system that has produced over 100,000 parent leaders nationwide. Interact with this manageable, transferable, proven approach. Experience core parent engagement practices aligned with the U.S. Dept. of Education’s Dual Capacity-Building Framework for Family-School Partnerships. Entertaining, interactive, and practical, this session provides evidence-based strategies to boost student achievement through parent engagement.

Presenter: Patty Bunker, Family Leadership

A Tale of Two Districts: Lessons from Creating New Family & Community Engagement Offices
Room: 306/307

Share in the experience of two districts in the early stages of building new family and community engagement departments. Special attention will focus on securing buy-in from district stakeholders, developing family engagement frameworks for schools, and making use of steering committees to shape the early direction of the work. The vision that led to a Kellogg Foundation grant will also be presented. The session will conclude with a discussion on assessing and addressing early hurdles.
Using Data to Implement Quality Family Engagement Outcomes

Room: 315

The research is clear: when schools, families, and communities support each other, students of all backgrounds and abilities achieve at higher levels. But determining where to start is not so clear. Participants will experience a data walk to determine one school’s strengths, areas of need, and overall trends. Participants will use the data to draw conclusions, make informed decisions, and develop a meaningful plan of action to improve student and family outcomes.

Presenters: Jenni Brasington & Ron Mirr, Scholastic Education

We Are Family: Systems-Changing Advocacy

Room: 302

Come learn from family advocates about a local program model and supporting initiatives that are driving systems change for youth with disabilities throughout the District of Columbia. Family members of youth with intellectual and developmental disabilities and program implementers will discuss the DC Advocacy Partners program model, the DC Supporting Families Community of Practice, and how their advocacy efforts on behalf of their children have benefited a community.

Presenters: Frances Vhay & Dana Fink, Institute for Educational Leadership; Cheri Mallory & Ronald Hampton, DC Advocacy Partners
The Art of Dad Engagement
Room: 316

When fathers are positively engaged and involved, children and families do better. This session will focus on how professionals and organizations can develop father-friendly environments and explore the benefits, barriers, and opportunities around the engagement of dads. Participants will be introduced to the Strengthening Families™ Protective Factors framework and identify strength-based engagement strategies, including the Be Strong Families Dads Parent Café process.

Presenters: Guy Schingoethe & Kareen Nunnally, Be Strong Families

Authentic Community Engagement for Social Change
Room: 317

Learn how to authentically engage and tap into the lived experiences of parents, residents, and diverse stakeholders to build a common vision and develop strategies that improve community conditions for families. Explore how Best Start—a place-based effort in 14 distinct Los Angeles County communities—is building parent and resident leadership and capacity to improve policies, resources, and services. Reflect on lessons learned in these communities and obtain useful tools and tips applicable to other community efforts seeking social change.

Presenters: Manuel Fierro, Rafael Gonzalez & Alex Wade, First 5 Los Angeles

Clarkston Families Decide: Engaging Diverse Families in Decision-Making
Room: 318

The session will model a transformative family engagement initiative funded by W. K. Kellogg Foundation and other partners, implemented by CDF Action, Clarkston, Ga., known as “the most diverse square mile in the country.” Presenters will outline the components and lessons learned from the Early Learning Community Trust process, in which families who speak five languages select an issue and a project to be funded. Share in the process, projects, policy implications, and internal and university evaluations.

Presenters: Roberta Malavenda, CDF Action; Hodan Osman, Clarkston Ready School; Essra Hamid, Clarkston Families Decide

Empowering Families in Multi-Tier System of Support

Room: 411

The Kansas State Department of Education has incorporated family engagement throughout the Multi-Tier System of Support (MTSS) model. Developing meaningful family engagement goals and strategies are critical components for creating an empowering culture in MTSS. In this session, we will provide a demonstration of the movement and support of students in a MTSS model and how family engagement may change in each tier.

Presenters: Jane Groff & Barbara Gannaway, Kansas Parent Information Resource Center

ESSA Listen & Learn

Room: 409

“With this bill, we affirm that fundamentally American ideal—that every child, regardless of race, income, background, the zip code where they live, deserves the chance to make of their lives what they will.”—President Obama. Participants will have the opportunity to discuss the Every Student Succeeds Act with U.S. Department of Education officials.

Federal staff will be available to listen to participants’ reactions, questions, and concerns.

Presenters: Brenda Girton-Mitchell & Sylvia Lyles, U.S. Department of Education; William Mendoza, White House Initiative on American Indian and Alaskan Native Education

Family Engagement Teacher Collaborative: Building Teacher Mindset, Capacity & Leadership

Room: 408

Participants will learn about a family engagement fellowship offered to teachers in D.C. Public Schools and identify ways in which they could bring similar programs to their school or district. Teachers in the Family Engagement Collaborative (FEC) receive home visit training and come together throughout the year for community building and shared learning. The FEC Masters program is an advanced opportunity for those who have completed the introductory FEC to design and implement a project that targets their own schools’ family engagement needs.

Presenters: Natalie Foglia, DCPS Office of Family and Public Engagement; Tiffany Frizzell, Randle Highlands Elementary School

Family Support: Transformed Parents for Transformed Schools & Communities

Room: 403

This interactive workshop will highlight qualitative, participatory approaches on how parents and children are positively transformed through family support programs with potential to transform schools, communities, and human services. The workshop operates from the framework that school readiness and school success starts with ready families who are stable and socially and emotionally supported for skill and leadership development. Gain a deeper understanding on how the principles of family support (relationship building, strengths-based modeling, and shared decision-making) positively affect parent leadership and program growth.

Presenters: Sheila Beasley, University of Pittsburgh; L. Twila Davis, Allegheny County Family Support Policy Board

Fun with Evaluation: Co-Constructing a Logic Model for Family & Community Engagement

Room: 302

To identify, enhance, and share best practices, we need evaluation. In this session, you will be provided with tools to develop logic models to plan and evaluate family/community engagement initiatives and will have the opportunity to create or refine your own logic model. Join us to explore how to involve families and teachers in this process. We will share existing research-based family frameworks and a list of tools for measuring change. Bring yours if you have one!

How States Promote Equity in Education Through Family Engagement

Room: 310/311

As student populations become increasingly diverse, states are leveraging engagement efforts to address educational equity issues and the needs of their underserved families and communities. This panel presentation will focus on how states are leading the way in partnering with families and advancing equity through family engagement. Learn how Connecticut, Wisconsin, and Illinois are using family engagement as a statewide strategy to support equity in education.

Presenters: Lacy Wood, American Institutes for Research; Judy Carson, Connecticut State Department of Education; Chrishirella Warthen, Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction; Reyna Hernandez, Illinois State Board of Education

Mai’s Journey: A Family Engagement Framework in Practice

Room: 410

Kent School District is diverse, with families speaking more than 135 languages. Cultural barriers are transcended by parents partnering in the efforts to close the achievement gap. The Parent Academy for Student Achievement emerged to help parents navigate the school system. The nine-week program is currently taught in our four most prevalent languages. Learn from Mai’s journey as a participant, recruiter, and now facilitator. She has been instrumental in building and enhancing the capacity of staff and families in the areas of connections, cognition, confidence and capabilities.

Presenters: Millicent Borishade & Mai Tran, Kent School District; Carlina Brown-Banks, Community Center for Education Results

Planning for Process: Designing an Interactive Family Engagement Event

Room: 315

Participants will explore the Dual-Capacity Framework for Family-School Partnerships and learn to use interactive strategies to embed best practices into family engagement events. This highly interactive session will focus on building a family reading night that is relational, developmental, collaborative, interactive, and linked to learning. Participants will leave the session with high-impact strategies designed to shift the focus from a family reading night to a capacity-building event for families.

Presenters: Jenni Brasington & Ron Mirr, Scholastic Education

Restorative Practices: Fostering Healthy Relationships & Promoting Positive School Discipline

Room: 303

Across the U.S., exclusionary discipline disproportionately affects black students and other marginalized communities. There are viable alternatives to exclusionary discipline. One of the most promising approaches is restorative practices. Join us to learn how we can reduce school suspensions and increase student engagement through this approach. Proactively build relationships and a sense of community to prevent conflict and strategically address issues after they arise.

Presenters: Amie Matson & Brandi Taylor, A+ Schools

Secondary Transition Tools of Engagement for Families of Students with Disabilities

Room: 304

Families and caregivers are essential partners in assisting youth with disabilities in transitioning from high school to adult life. Presenters will share information on Pennsylvania’s effective practices and resources to enhance family and caregiver engagement in the secondary transition process. Learn about the Planning for the Future Checklist and Pennsylvania’s State Systemic Improvement Plan, built on the focus of increasing the graduation rate and decreasing the dropout rate for students with disabilities.

Presenters: Michael J. Stoehr & Shanna M. Bradfield, Pennsylvania Department of Education, Bureau of Special Education – PaTTAN

Strategies for Building Parent Power: Replicable Models from Los Angeles & Chicago

Room: 404

Parents and communities are critical to catalyzing and sustaining improvement in schools, but one of the biggest challenges can be finding ways to engage and support the powerful involvement of parents. In this session, representatives of two exemplary organizations, Inner City Struggle and Logan Square Neighborhood Association, will share their own success in parent-driven education initiatives that have transformed schools and scaled reforms, contributing to a national movement for community-centered education justice.

Presenters: Jose Roberto Bustillo, Innercity Struggle; Edgar Villanueva, Schott Foundation for Public Education; Leticia Barrera, Logan Square Neighborhood Association

Systematic Strategies for Aligning Parent Engagement

Room: 405

In the age of parent engagement, Families In Schools works across the country to provide professional development to create systemic practices for improved parent engagement among all parent groups. In this session, participants will explore how to align parent engagement practices and planning via culturally relevant capacity-building trainings and a rubric for assessing the effectiveness of schools’ parent engagement practices. This session will provide strategies for school and organizational staff who promote an inclusive environment. Don’t miss this engaging opportunity to explore these research-based best practices.

Presenter: Tina Ochoa, Families In Schools
Top-Down & Bottom-Up: Results-Based Family Engagement

Room: 301

Johns Hopkins University recently studied the impact of home visits on student outcomes in Washington, D.C. and found positive influence on attendance and reading. Dig deeper into the results of this study and D.C.’s top-down and bottom-up approach to building a city where effective family engagement is the standard practice and expectation in schools. We’ll share lessons learned from this evaluation and include opportunities for you to reflect on measuring the results of your own work.

Presenters: Laura Wilson Phelan & Samantha Cohen, Flamboyan Foundation

Tutu & Me: A Model for Enhancing Families’ Support for Their Children’s School Readiness

Room: 305

Join us to learn about Tutu and Me, a unique traveling early childhood education program that uses an intensive, intentional approach for engaging families and children together in activities and is grounded in Hawaiian culture and values. This workshop will present findings from a study that followed a cohort of children enrolled in the program through third grade, and focus on the Tutu and Me model, its positive results, and implications for replicating the model in other communities.

Maximizing Our Impact

Strong family and community engagement is central to the success of all children from cradle to career. We will only maximize our impact in states, districts, schools, and early childhood settings as long as high-impact family engagement practices continue to catalyze successful local and national efforts.

Presenters: Pedro A. Rivera, Secretary of Education, State of Pennsylvania; Cynthia Jackson, Family Services Specialist, Early Childhood Education Program, Pittsburgh Public Schools; John H. Jackson, CEO, The Schott Foundation for Public Education

Pedro A. Rivera has been Pennsylvania’s secretary of education since June 2015. He began his career as a classroom teacher in Philadelphia and spent 13 years in city schools, working his way up to principal. From 2008 until he was appointed secretary, he was superintendent in Lancaster, where his team created a new Pre-K-12 curriculum, an aggressive professional development plan, and innovative teacher observation tools, improving graduation rates and state assessment scores. The White House honored him as a Champion of Change for efforts to transform urban education.

Cynthia Jackson

Cynthia Jackson is a family services specialist for the Pittsburgh Public School’s Early Childhood Program (ECP), where she builds relationships with families and forges bonds between families, schools, and communities. ECP strives to recognize parents as children’s first and very important teachers and encourages parents to be involved in their child’s education through college. At In-Home Child Development Services, she assisted parents with keeping their children safe and cared for while they underwent substance abuse treatment. She was also a case manager for TANF-recipients re-entering the workforce.

John H. Jackson

Dr. John H. Jackson became president and CEO of The Schott Foundation for Public Education in 2007. He leads efforts to ensure high-quality public education for all students, regardless of race or gender. Previously, Jackson served as chief policy officer and national director of education at the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Jackson was an adjunct professor of race, gender, and public policy at the Georgetown Public Policy Institute. In 1999, President Clinton appointed him as a senior policy advisor in Department of Education’s Office for Civil Rights.
Many people and organizations played a key role in making the 2016 National Family & Community Engagement Conference possible. We would like to thank our national and local partners and workshop reviewers. Also, a special thank you to the on-site volunteers for their time and effort to help make this national FCE conference possible!

For over a half-century, IEL has championed the need for leaders at all levels to shake off their institutional constraints and work across boundaries to address the needs of young people and their families. Bound by no constituency, IEL serves as a catalyst that helps policymakers, administrators, and practitioners at all levels to bridge bureaucratic silos and undo gridlock to improve outcomes for all young people and their families. The work of IEL focuses on three pillars required for young people and their communities to succeed.

▲ Involving the broader community with public education to support the learning and development of young people.

▲ Building more effective pathways into the workforce for all young people and supporting the transition to adulthood.

▲ Preparing generations of leaders with the know-how to drive collaborative efforts at all levels.

VISION
A society that uses all of its resources effectively to provide an equal opportunity for all children and youth to learn, develop, and become contributing citizens of our democracy.

MISSION
To equip leaders to work together across boundaries to build effective systems that prepare children and youth for postsecondary education, careers, and citizenship.

BREATHE INTO SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY LEADERSHIP

With a focus on effective professional learning and key leadership lessons from practice, IEL’s LT² team uses the latest research on achieving collective impact for equitable and excellent schools.

Through learning exchanges and customized capacity-building activities, LT² works with teams of district, school, and community-based leaders to create and sustain the necessary conditions for continuous improvement. Services include co-planning, facilitation, coaching, and evaluation.
