What's Happening in Washington

A summary of recent federal policy actions and a look ahead to the coming weeks

It's back to school for students and teachers and back to work for members of Congress after taking their August Recess. Here's what's been happening in federal education policy over the summer and what's in store for the Fall.

Appropriations: The Senate Appropriations Labor-H Subcommittee approved their version of the FY2025 bill on August 1st. This bill provides $80 billion for the Department of Education to make critical investments in Title I, IDEA, Statewide Family Engagement Centers, CTE, Full-Service Community Schools, FASFA implementation, and increases to the Pell Grant.

Back to School Bus Tour: On Tuesday, September 3rd, Education Secretary Miguel Cardona kicked off the 2024 Back to School Bus Tour with stops in Pennsylvania, Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Michigan. During the tour, Secretary Cardona will highlight the investments the Biden-Harris Administration has made to support the Raise the Bar initiative, including Full-Service Community Schools.

FAFSA and Student Loans: In the aftermath of the challenges posed by the implementation of the new FAFSA form in 2024, the U.S. Department of Education announced a new process for launching the 2025-2026 FAFSA form, which will include testing and listening sessions from students, and families. The new FAFSA form is scheduled for release on or before December 1, 2024. Additionally, the Biden-Harris Administration continues to face legal challenges in its effort to forgive student loan debt. On September 3rd, seven states sued the Administration to stop the cancellation of over $73 million worth of student loans. This lawsuit comes on the heels of the Supreme Court denial of the Biden Administration's effort to provide debt relief for millions of borrowers.

Title IX: 26 states are suing the U.S. Department of Education to stop the implementation of the new updates to Title IX, which expand the law to offer protections from discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity.

IEL Policy Highlights

IEL and the Coalition for Community Schools kicked off the new school by launching the 8th Annual Community Schools Coordinators Appreciate Week Toolkit and leading a Sign on Letter to fund Community Schools at $150 million in FY25.

We signed onto several letters to Congress supporting the continuation or increase in funding for key education programs, including teacher preparation programs, maintaining the Farm Bill, and limiting cuts to non-defense discretionary spending.
